TERRIBLE FERRY DISASTER SCENES

MUSHROOM GROWTH OF CHANGCHUN

ENORMOUS BUILDING ACTIVITY

8-STOREY HOTEL

(Special to "Telegraph.")

Shanghai, Sept. 10.
Changchun stands unique in the welter of the worldwide business depression as the establishment there of the Manchukuo capital has led to a building boom described as nothing short of phenomenal, according to Japanese reports.

The city had a population of some 40,000 when the new "government" decided to make it the capital of Manchukuo. The numbers have more than doubled in the last few months and are still increasing rapidly.

All new building is being made to conform to a town planning scheme and enormous lots have been laid out for development. It is planned to make Changchun capable of housing a million and a half people.

The new projects are going ahead by leaps and bounds, and they include an eight-storey hotel which will cost ten million yen to complete.—Reuter.

BRITISH FINANCE TRIUMPH

CRISIS CREDITS NOW ALL REPAYED

London, Sept. 9.

A triumph for British finance is shown in the prompt repayment, which is announced to-night, of the £2,500,000,000 subscribed in 1931 by French investors during the financial crisis.

The whole of the foreign credits obtained by the Treasury during the national emergency have now been repaid.

A heavy task still awaits the Treasury, but it will doubtless be easily carried out.

City authorities estimate that roughly £90,000,000 will be required to redeem the balance of the War Loan still unconverted, while £150,000,000 worth of Treasury Bonds will be converted or repaid during the autumn.—Reuter.

COTTON STRIKE CONFERENCE

PROBABLY TO MEET ON TUESDAY

London, Sept. 9.

The Ministry of Labour is to-night issuing invitations to a Cotton Conference, which will probably take place in Manchester on Tuesday.

The Ministry will be represented at the Conference by Mr. Leggett, its Conciliation Officer, who was in Manchester to-day in consultation with the leaders of both parties to the dispute in the industry.—British Wireless.

Mr. Wang Ching-wei has again become the centre of a political mystery owing to the circulation of numerous conflicting reports, some saying that he intends to return to Nanking and others that he will not leave for the capital under any circumstances.—Reuter.

WHOLESALE RUIN

ROYALIST DUKE PENILESS

HOME RULE GIVEN TO CATALONIA

Madrid, Sept. 9.

Many of the wealthiest grandees of Spain have been reduced to penury by the legislation approved by the Cortes amid scenes of almost wild enthusiasm in the last two days.

The Cortes to-day finally disposed of the two most important measures of the session, passing the Catalan Statute which gives Catalonia a wide measure of long-sought Home Rule and also disposing of the Expropriation Bill.

The latter Bill provides for the expropriation of the property of the nobility and most of Spain's three hundreds grandees will be ruined.

The biggest victim of the wholesale seizure is the Duke of Madingell.

ENORMOUS LOSS.

The Duke was recently deprived of thirty villages for his share in a Monarchist plot and he now loses, under the new Bill, over 125,000 acres of land. He is now almost penniless.

The deputies rose in the Cortes and cheered the double event like schoolboys breaking up for a holiday, which in fact they were actually doing after four months of intense labour.—Reuter.

CHENG DECISION ON MONDAY

LENGTHY DOCUMENT EXPECTED

The Full Court judgment on the reserved points of law in the trial of Cheng Kwok-yau, who was found guilty at the recent special Criminal Sessions of procuring the murder of George Fung, is to be delivered on Monday at 10 a.m. The judgment is believed to be a very lengthy document.

Mr. Eldon Potter, K. C., and Mr. F. C. Jenkin, K. C., the leading counsel for the defence, are at present away from the Colony on holiday.

An announcement has been made that the British Government is making representations to Managua regarding the murder of British subjects in Nicaragua.

MEN BLOWN HIGH INTO AIR

NEARLY ALL ABOARD KILLED OR INJURED

AT "HELL" GATE

New York, Sept. 9.

Terrible scenes accompanied the explosion aboard the ferry-steamers "Observation"

The death-roll is believed to be greatly in excess of preliminary estimates of 20 killed and 60 missing. It is feared that over a hundred men lost their lives.

Bodies of the unfortunate men aboard her were tossed high in the air like rockets. Two of them landed, dead of course, on the roof of a building near the waterfront.

The ferry-steamers was carrying approximately two hundred iron-workers, who were employed by the New York Municipality to build a new penitentiary on Rikers Island.

Thirty-seven bodies have already been recovered.

SANK LIKE STONE.

The terrific explosion brought crowds of workers to the side of the river and assistance was speedily organised. Numerous rescues were made from the water, but practically everyone who escaped with his life suffered injuries, some of them very serious.

The cause of the explosion is a complete mystery. The vessel sank like a stone after the blast and every member of her crew must have been lost.—Reuter.

DEFAULT RUMOURS

GERMAN PAYMENT TO AMERICA

OFFICIAL STATEMENT

London, Sept. 9.

Persistent rumours circulated through the City to-day to the effect that Germany has indicated to the United States that she is unable to meet loan payments due at the end of the month.

Similar reports were in circulation in Paris, but Reuter's Washington correspondent says that Mr. Ogden Mills, Secretary to the Treasury, has issued a statement announcing that no formal notice of postponement of debt repayments has been received from Germany. Mr. Mills has, however, been discussing the matter with the German Embassy.

FRENCH POSITION.

In connexion with the report that Germany already notified the United States of her inability to meet the payment of 33,000,000 marks which falls due on September 30, it is noteworthy that French financial and political circles are awaiting with considerable interest the decision of the French Government regarding the payment to America due on September 15.

Excluding capital repayment, France should pay approximately $330,000,000 before the end of the year.

It is anticipated that the Herriot Government will decide to pay the interest and postpone the capital instalment.—Reuter.

CAMERA CONTEST RESULT

FIRST PRIZE TO MR. GRENHAM

FULL LIST OF WINNERS

It gives us pleasure to-day to announce the results of the Telegraph Amateur Photo Competition, for which no fewer than 685 entries were received. The winning pictures will be found in the Pictorial Supplement.

The task of judging was very kindly undertaken by Mr. J. H. Hunt, O.B.E., and Mr. E. A. von Kobza-Nagy, B.A., and, with all variety of subjects eligible for prizes the task was a most difficult one. All the entries were carefully scrutinised, and the awards of the Judges, to whom we are greatly indebted, are given below, together with their comments on the principal winning pictures.

CASH PRIZES.

First Cash Prize of $60, won by Mr. J. C. M. Grenham. A remarkably fine street scene, of excellent perspective, with wonderful movement of figures. Technical quality perfect. The eye cannot run through the picture, a common fault in such studies.

Second Cash Prize of $40, won by Mr. Loong Pei-ink. A splendid study in expressions. The title, "Waits," is conveyed in the impression of suffering contained in the eyes. Photographically well lit, and, considering that the original was taken on a 3" by 4" film, a remarkable achievement.

Third Cash Prize of $20, won by Mr. E. G. Tan. A perfect artistic production of life on a junk. There is not a bit too much or a bit too little in the picture, which is noteworthy for its perfect balance.

Three Consolation Prizes of $10 each.—Won by Dr. T. H. Nagel, Mr. C. H. Chiu, and Mr. Richard Chau.

SPECIAL PRIZES.

1932 Model of Kodak 616 camera, donated by the Eastman Kodak Company, for best Story-Telling Picture, won by Mr. J. C. M. Grenham. A remarkable picture of Chinese boys studying books at a travelling library. A very difficult subject to photograph without the subjects being aware of the presence of the cameraman. Beautifully composed.

Six "Agfa" Box Cameras, donated by Messrs. Waibel and Co. ("Defag") for Schoolchildren's Section.—Won by Masters Tony Green, L. Sanh, A. R. Abbas, Paulie See Kee, Carl Bunje, and Bel Wal-yung.

JUDGES' ADVICE.

The Judges state that, generally speaking, the quality of the entries was astonishingly good. Defects in technical execution were, however, apparent in many instances, although in this respect the Competition showed a marked improvement over that of last year. Many beautiful pictures were ruined through being printed on the wrong type of paper.

Amateurs should distinguish between at least three different qualities of negatives—soft, medium, and hard. Soft negatives should be printed on hard paper, medium negatives on medium paper, and hard negatives on soft paper. This is the golden rule for producing the best results.

"ZIMMY" BEGINS CHANNEL SWIM

LEGLESS WONDER CONFIDENT

LARGE CROWDS SEE START

(Telegraph Special.)

London, Sept. 9.

Hundreds of people lined the cliffs of Dover to-day to witness the start of the Channel swimming attempt by the legless American swimmer, Charles Zibelman, nicknamed "Zimmy."

An inveterate smoker, Zimmy is taking a large supply of cigars which he will puff as long as the waves permit.

If he reaches France, and he is supremely confident of success, Zimmy declares that he may start the return journey immediately.

ENDURANCE TEST.

He is not out to break any speed records. On the contrary, he depends for his success entirely upon his powers of endurance. He estimates that the double journey will occupy him for 70 hours of swimming, a remarkable feat in itself but falling a long way short of Zimmy's personal achievements in endurance tests.

In July last year, for instance, he won the world's championship for endurance swimming at Honolulu by staying in the water for 100 hours. He also holds the under-water record in the United States for remaining submerged for 4 minutes, 17 seconds.

STEAKS AND CIGARS.

Zimmy lost his legs in a tramway accident when he was a newsboy in Chicago. A year after his accident he learned to swim, having discovered that he could not sink.

During the Channel crossing he will be fed with steaks, chicken, rice and bread and butter and he thinks he will need at least 100 cigars.

The difficulties of the swim have occasioned him no anxiety. His record for distance in swimming is 78 miles without a stop.—Reuter.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

By W. E. McKenney.

I have often noticed that many players, when they are the declarer, make the mistake of cashing their good tricks immediately. That is very often the ruin of a hand. While at times there is no question that such a play must be employed, especially when you wish to secure knowledge from your opponents by their discards, still there are times when these cards can be used for entries in other hand and thereby assist you in making your contract. Take for example the following hand:

♠ K-J	♠ 8-7-6-5-4	♠ 9-5	♠ A-4
♥ A-Q-9-7-4	♥ J-3	♥ K-6	♥ Q-10-9-3
♦ A-9-5	♦ Q-10-9-3	♦ 10-8-6-3-2	♦ 10-2
♣ J-8-2	♣ 8-7-6

The Bidding.

South, the dealer, and West would pass. North has a good third hand heart bid. Again I want to remind you that when employing the one over one system, a stronger hand is required to open the bidding first or second hand than is required third or fourth hand.

East would overcall the heart bid with one no trump. South would pass. West has a good looking hand, and should bid two no trump. The reason he does not jump to three is because he does have the heart suit stopped and partner may have it stopped only once. East would go for game by bidding three no trump.

The Play.
South, who has the opening lead, has a five-card suit of his own but has no re-entries. Unless you can quickly establish your own suit and have re-entries, you must open your partner's suit, therefore South's correct opening is the ten of hearts, the jack would be played from dummy, North would cover with the queen and East would win with the ace.

East would play the king of clubs which North would win with the ace. North would return the eight of hearts. East would false-card and win the trick with the king.

Declarer now has three good club tricks, but should not make the mistake of cashing these tricks immediately. While he still has control of every suit, he should try to establish his diamonds and he may need the club suit to provide him with entries in both hands.

RIGHTS OF CROWN QUERIED.

CIVIL CLAIM SET UP AS BAR TO CRIMINAL CASE

That the criminal proceedings were debarred by reason of the amount in question having been included in a judgment given in a previous civil action, was the interesting legal defence advanced by Mr. Leo D'Almada, Sr., for a client who was charged on remand, before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon, with embezzlement.

The accused, Tsui Wai-hing, described as a business broker for the Sze Yap S.S. Company, was accused of appropriating to his own use $1,584.10, said to have been traced by six documents issued to Messrs. Siemens & Co. of Canton. Ng Jim-kai, manager of the Company, admitted that this amount was included in a civil claim for $3,354.06 previously brought by the Company against the accused.

Earlier on, the Company retracted and asked that the criminal proceedings be withdrawn, but this was refused by his Worship, who ordered that the documents be impounded and the criminal hearing proceeded with, the Crown substituted in the role of prosecutor.

Yesterday, Mr. D'Almada referred to the judgment already given for the larger amount in the civil claim, and submitted that as it included the smaller amount now in question, that judgment debarred further proceedings to either a civil or criminal nature. While not contending that it actually was a case of autrefois acquit or autrefois convict, Mr. D'Almada said the position was somewhat analogous.

Two Aspects.
His Worship: I would like to draw your attention to the fact that from the authorities the difference is in this, that one is a civil claim by the complainant, and the other is an offence against the State. These two may exist side by side.

His Worship further reminded Mr. D'Almada that the Crown had now stepped into the case and was proceeding against the accused on a separate criminal charge. This right, it was shown, was reserved to the Crown in the authorities cited.

Mr. D'Almada agreed, but contended that the complainant had exhausted his civil remedy, and judgment having been given in the civil action, the present proceedings were effaced or merged into that previous decision.

Mr. D'Almada submitted that it followed, if this amount which the accused was alleged to have embezzled was included in the judgment already given, it would be an abuse of the process of the Court by the complainants. If they attempted in any way, so to speak, to harass the accused again on another charge under that judgment, that judgment was a complete bar to the criminal proceedings.

Reversal of Process.
Mr. Wynne-Jones: You will agree that if they adopted the other procedure and brought your client before me first for the offence, here, and whether or no they would have a cause of action in the other Court, the position of this Court would remain unaffected. You cannot set up your arguments in one way to suit yourself.

Mr. D'Almada disagreed, arguing that having obtained judgment altered the whole aspect of the case. He would have been the last to have come boldly forward with his arguments had he not thought that the judgment already given debarred these further criminal proceedings by reason of its having already taken cognizance of the amount in question.

Mr. D'Almada remarked that his Worship had before him the first case of its kind. There was no analogous case in the whole laws of England.

His Worship reserved judgment on the point raised, and adjourned the case until next Tuesday.

LIVER & LAXATIVE PINKETTES PERFECTION

FILMS BANNED

POLICE REFUSE TO ALLOW PENINSULA SCREENING

Arrangements for the screening of a series of Australian Government films, depicting the industrial life of the Commonwealth have been postponed following the action by the Inspector General of Police Hon. Mr. T. H. King, who has refused permission to exhibit the films in the ball-room of the Peninsula Hotel.

In an interview yesterday evening Mr. King stated that permission to screen the films at the Peninsula Hotel had been refused on the ground that the Hotel was not licensed for variety entertainment. Special permission had been given in the case of the Empire Exhibition, for the screening of Empire films, but firemen were present on that occasion.

Asked whether permission had also been granted previously for the exhibition of New Zealand publicity films at the Peninsula Hotel, Mr. King replied that he was not aware of the fact.

Police State Reasons.
"Permission to show these films is refused simply because the Peninsula Hotel is not licensed to exhibit them," he said. "The fact that they are Australian Government films does not enter into the matter. The exhibitor can show the films at other licensed places if he wishes to, but no exception can be made as far as the Peninsula Hotel is concerned. If I gave permission to him to exhibit the films there, I would have complaints from other houses."

When it was suggested that the Peninsula Hotel was the only suitable place for the exhibition of such films, and that cinema houses were unable to show them owing to their advanced bookings, the Inspector General replied that it was a matter for the exhibitor.

In an interview last night, Mr. Caleb Cheong, who is exhibiting the films for the Commonwealth Government, said that he could not understand the attitude of the Inspector General of Police. If permission were given for the exhibition of Canadian and New Zealand publicity films at the Peninsula Hotel, he considered that it was unfair to ban the Australian films. Considerable expense had been incurred in preparing the exhibition, and advertisements had to be cancelled at the last minute owing to the sudden impasse.

"I sincerely hope, in view of all the circumstances, that Mr. King will reconsider his decision," said Mr. Cheong.

LEAP YEAR BRIDE

by Laura Lou BROOKMAN

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

Cherry Dixon, pretty 18-year-old daughter of wealthy parents, falls in love with Dan Phillips, newspaper reporter. She quarrels with her father about Dan and then, taking advantage of Leap Year, asks Dan to marry her. They are married and Cherry for the first time finds what it means to lack money. They take a cheap apartment and her struggles with housework are discouraging. Miss Shannon, moving editor of the News is friendly with Cherry. She meets handsome Max Pearson, also on the News.

After several weeks Cherry's mother becomes seriously ill. The girl is called home and there is a reconciliation with her parents but pride will not allow her to accept financial aid from them. When Mrs. Dixon is stronger she and her husband leave for several months at the seashore.

Cherry and Dan are invited to a swimming party at a nearby resort. Dan is delayed and Cherry starts with her parents but pride will not allow her to accept financial aid from them. When Mrs. Dixon is stronger she and her husband leave for several months at the seashore.

Brenda Vail, magazine writer, comes to Wellington. Dan meets her and she asks him to collaborate on a play because he can supply information she does not have. Dan is delighted but when Cherry meets Miss Vail she does not like her.

CHAPTER XXXVI

Dan Phillips looked up from the typewriter. "We've been, at this thing for two hours, Brenda," he complained, "and I haven't even written half a page!"

The typewriter table stood a few feet from the davenport in the living room of Brenda Vail's apartment. A lamp made of a Chinese vase, with a tuffeta shade illuminated the young man's face.

Brenda Vail turned. She had been standing before the open window and now she rested one hand against the casement. It was a pose that was becoming as Brenda Vail very well knew. Her figure was silhouetted against the black sky. She wore her favourite costume—pyjamas. They were made with trousers of black velvet and a tunic of gold brocade.

Miss Vail shrugged impatiently. "What is the use?" she said. "I have told you that when I am out of the mood I simply can not work. I am tired. My head aches. This trying to build up action, to plan entrances and exits—oh, it is maddening!"

"I'm sorry!" Phillips' tone was apologetic. "I didn't know you weren't feeling well. It's only that you know we promised ourselves we'd have the first act done this week. You should have sent me away long ago."

He arose but the woman put out a hand to stop him.

"No," she said. "Don't go. Stay here and talk to me and maybe the head will feel better. I am as anxious to have the work finished as you are. A little rest and perhaps I'll be able to get at it again."

She sank to the davenport. Her titian head was pillowed against a cushion of jade satin.

"Sit here beside me," she went on. "You're comforting, Dan. I feel as though I'd known you a long while, yet what is it? Only about two weeks. Most of that time we've been talking about gunmen and gangsters and other terrible creatures. Talk to me about something else, won't you?"

He dropped to the seat beside her. "Wouldn't you rather I'd go?" he said uneasily. "If you're tired rest is what you need."

For an instant the grey-green eyes met Dan's. "If you go I'll be lonely," Brenda Vail said softly. "And I am lonely so much of the time!"

Phillips smiled. "That's an odd thing for you to say. You have so many friends, Brenda. Why, you're the last person in the world I'd expect to be lonely."

"You think so? Ah, then you are not as clever as I thought. Loneliness comes from the heart. What do you know of a woman's heart?"

Why—why I don't know. I don't spend much time reading those love-love columns if that's what you mean. I've always had the idea men and women are really pretty much alike."

Miss Vail leaned her head back. "Cigarette?" She said idly. Phillips held the box for her and flicked the automatic lighter into flame.

"Men and women are alike," Brenda Vail said slowly. "And yet they are different. Each of us, I suppose, is doomed to much loneliness. It is only when a man or woman meets another who really understands that the loneliness is lifted. But there—I have myself for company all day. I want you to talk now."

Phillips smiled. He looked very boyish and very attractive when he smiled. "I'm sorry, but honestly the only thing I've been thinking of for a week is this play. Do you really understand what this means for me, Brenda? Do you? Why, I'd begun to think I was sunk in this place forever! I thought I was never to have a chance. It was the greatest piece of luck in the world for me when you came here!"

She was pleased. "And I think it was luck for me, too," she said. "Toll me—what are you planning to do if our play is a great success?"

"Oh, I hadn't thought that far ahead yet. Remember, the first act isn't finished! But I'd like to go to New York and know some of the people you've talked about. I'd like to go to the places you've told me

"It is a great life," the woman assured him. "And it is what you should have, Dan. For to write you must really know life. You must have experiences—adventures if you want to call them that. You must see something of the world. Oh, you have talent—I am sure of that. But you need to develop it."

"It's wonderful of you to be so encouraging."

Brenda Vail put a hand on the young man's arm. The faint odor of mimosa, heady and pungent, came to his nostrils as she moved.

"You must let nothing stand in the way of your work," she told him. "Nothing—do you understand? You must go to New York. You must travel. You must have freedom and you must be with those who understand."

"I'll do anything you say," he assured her eagerly.

"Ah—you are a dear boy!"

From a radio in a nearby apartment came the strains of a waltz. It was softly played, melodious. As the song reached the chorus the violinist took the melody, sent it forth throbbing as a lover's plea. The rhythm of the music caught at the senses. The song reached its climax, ended on a high note.

Dan looked at his watch. "Why, it's almost midnight!" he exclaimed. "I had no idea it was so late. Cherry will be sure I've been murdered."

"But this isn't late!"

"It is for Wellington," Dan told her with a grin. "Anyhow, I'll have to dash along. Are we going to be able to work to-morrow?"

"I'm not sure," Miss Vail told him. "You can telephone me at noon."

She always spoke as though anything another person did for her was a favour to themselves. Some how Dan admired her for it. It made her seem very sophisticated, very much a part of that outer world.

"I'll call you about 1 o'clock," he promised. "And I hope you'll feel better in the morning."

The door closed after him. Brenda Vail crossed the room with a determined stride. She took another cigarette from the box, lighted it and dropped comfortably to the davenport.

"He's a fool," she said to herself, "but useful—and amusing!"

Cherry sat on her knees surveying the stretch of yellow cotton cloth. It was spread on the floor before her and laid on in curious fashion were oddly shaped pieces of yellow tissue paper.

There were lines in Cherry's forehead. "Now I wonder," she said aloud, "if that can be right?"

Since there was no one to answer the question went without reply. Cherry took up the scissors and began to cut around the paper pattern.

It was her first experiment in dressmaking. Mrs. Moreau had been making house dresses and had promised Cherry that she might use her sewing machine. The pattern was one of those labelled "for beginners." Cherry had read the directions half a dozen times but the result of her work, as it lay before her, was more puzzling than any problem she had ever encountered in school days.

Slowly and laboriously she cut around the last bit of paper. The sections of cloth did not seem to look like much but when Cherry held them up she thought she began to understand how they fitted together.

She was gathering up the last of the strips of yellow cloth when a key sounded in the lock. Cherry scrambled to her feet.

"Goodness, Dan, I didn't know it was so late!"

The young man looked down at the floor. "Say, what's going on here?" he demanded. "What in the world—?"

Cherry laughed. She held up a long piece of cloth. "My new fall outfit!" she said. "How do you like it?"

"Well, it doesn't look like much to me. What's the idea?"

"It doesn't look like much to me, either," Cherry admitted. "But wait until I'm through with it! It's going to be a dress, Dan. You didn't know I was a modiste, did you?"

"Do you think you can make a dress out of that?"

The girl nodded. "Mrs. Moreau promised to help me," she told him. "Of course I don't expect it to be very beautiful but the colour's pretty. Don't you think so? It'll do to wear around the house. Besides, I wanted to see if I could really do it. The pattern and cloth together only cost $1.75."

"You're getting to be a miser," Dan told her grinning. "Pretty soon you'll be wanting me to wear homemade shirts and crocheted neckties."

"I'll have to learn to crochet first. Are you hungry? Dinner's almost ready. I can have it on the table in 10 minutes."

"No hurry," Dan said. "What do you say we go over and pay a call on the Casays tonight? He was asking last week what we were

CHEAPER WIVES

$50 MINIMUM REDUCED

Belgrade, Aug. 8.
At a special meeting of prominent Moslems at Kosovska Mitrovitsa in Southern Serbia it was decided to reduce the price of wives, the prevailing minimum figure of £50 being considered excessive in view of present economic circumstances.

Intending bridegrooms have now to produce £12 10s, which must be spent by the bride's parents on providing a suitable trousseau.

This money is to be paid against a receipt stating that it is for the trousseau only and that the bridegroom is under no further obligation.

The resolutions were carried unanimously by the meeting, who no doubt saw "cut prices" to be the only means of disposing of the increasing unmarried female population.

work on the play?"

Dan shook his head. He came over to where Cherry stood and took her chin in his hand. "I decided to knock off for a while," he said. "It's been a long time since we've had an evening to ourselves. You don't mind having me around, do you?"

"There's nothing I'd like better! It has been lonely here this last week but of course I know what it means to you to finish the play. How's it going, Dan?"

He frowned. "Not coming as fast as I hoped it would," he said, "but of course I don't know much about these things. I guess if you didn't have anything else to do but sit down and write you could turn out plays and short stories in no time."

"Some day you'll be able to do that."

"Well—I hope so! This working all day on a news beat and then trying to keep up with Brenda Vail nights isn't so easy. Anyhow, let's forget about the play tonight. I don't want to even think about it."

"Then we'll forget it!"

They sat down to dinner. Dan talked about a medical discovery reported in the day's news. He mentioned the fact that Max Pearson had been offered a new job and was undecided about taking it. Dan had discouraged him.

"Maybe it's selfish," he explained, "but I hate to think of old Max going away."

It was later while Cherry was putting up the last of the dishes that the telephone rang. "I'll answer," she told Dan and a moment later added, "It's for you!"

Cherry had recognized Brenda Vail's voice.

CHILDREN LOVE ITS RICH, CHOCOLATE CREAMY FLAVOUR

—and how they thrive on it.

Cocomalt

In thousands of homes there are growing children who once detested milk, and now drink it eagerly. For Cocomalt wins over the fussiest child with its delicious chocolate flavour.

Cocomalt is not a medicine, but a rich, creamy food drink. Youngsters love it. And it is so wonderfully good for them!

In a Few Weeks—Stronger and Sturdier. Mothers with precious lives to safeguard should remember this: Cocomalt mixed with milk is about the most nutritious food that can be obtained. There's nothing like it for active, growing children. How it fills out their little bodies—puts roses in their cheeks—makes them sturdy, straight and strong!

For Cocomalt supplies the vitamins, carbohydrates, proteins and minerals needed to build essential tissue and bone in the young body. So highly concentrated, so perfectly balanced, are these food elements that Cocomalt actually adds 70% more nourishment to a glass of milk. No wonder it builds up children so quickly, showing a remarkable change even in a few short weeks!

Protect your child against PYORRHEA

10, 20, 30 years from now he will thank you
PYORRHEA, the dreaded mouth disease, is ugly, insidious, yet often invisible 10 or even 20 years from now your son may not be the healthy man you think he will be. He may be the victim of pyorrhea... unhealthy and unhappy. 30 years from now he may be broken down and a failure.
Help your children now to be strong and sturdy in later life. Teach them to protect (not neglect). Morning and night, have them brush their teeth with Forhan's for the Gums. It will not only keep their teeth clean and white, insure healthy mouths, but also, prevent dread pyorrhea.
Forhan's for the Gums is so fine, so pure, so gentle and mild, it cannot harm the most delicate tooth enamel of the youngest child.
Forhan's for the Gums is the formula of R. J. Forhan, D.D.S., specialist in mouth diseases. It contains Forhan's Pyorrhea Antiseptic developed by Dr. Forhan and used by dentists throughout the world in the treatment of pyorrhea.

PERMANENT WAVING.
OF
QUALITY AND SMARTNESS.

JULIETTE BEAUTY SALON
"QUALIFIED BARBERS FOR GENTLEMEN"
1, Hankow Road, Kowloon.
Phone 56213.

THE WORLD OF WOMEN

When the girls contesting in aquatic sports at the Olympic Games weren't in the swim itself they still held the crowd's attention with their official Olympic pyjamas. These pyjamas, fashioned from celanese jersey material, were a two-piece affair. They were white, gaily trimmed in red and blue.

ELECTRICAL FIRST AIDS.

Worn Flex.

If a flex covering begins to look worn at any point, it is wise to protect it immediately. There are many brands of adhesive insulating tape on the market.

Bind this tape on the damaged part, remembering to bind each strand of the flex separately. Bind well beyond the affected area.

If the wire seems to be partly broken, it is safer to fit a new flex immediately.

If the flex near the handle of an electric iron shows signs of wear it is best to shorten the flex or fit a new one.

Preparing a New Flex.

Cut off the required length of flex, being certain before you do so that the flex is suitable for the purpose required.

Take a sharp knife and gently cut a ring around the wire covering, about an inch from each end. Be careful not to cut the wire itself.

A gentle pull will now remove all the covering, leaving an inch of bare wire. Twist the wires to "bunch" them. Clean them with the edge of a match box. Prepare each of the four ends in this way.

Fitting Flex to a Plug.

Undo the obvious screws on the plug. There will generally be two. The plug will fall into two parts. If there is a hole in the top part, slip the flex through it.

Double over the end of one of the bare flex wires and thread it through the "eye" on one of the brass pillars. Turn the screw to fix it there. Fix the second flex wire in the other pillar.

Be certain that there is no possibility of the bare wires touching each other. Fit the two parts of the plug together again and replace the screws.

Fitting Flex to a Lampholder.

Unscrew gently the outer rings of the lampholder. Remember how the parts fit into each other.

Slip the flex through the hole in the dome. Double the bare ends of the prepared flex and thread one through the "eye" of each brass pillar. Turn the screws to fix them there.

Be certain that there is no possibility of the bare wires touching. Arrange the two small "fixers" to pinch the flex tightly in the hole of the dome. Screw back the other parts.

Remember that a projection in one part fits into a groove in another.

NOVEL WALLET.

A wallet that will make a special appeal to the traveller is fitted with a small torch and pencil. It is made of brown leather, and one side forms a note book, while the other contains bank notes, letters, and other necessities. The small, rounded electric torch is fixed in the centre of the wallet in place of a hinge, and the pencil appears at one end, just above the small bulb.

"But I look better with my hair plain. I look awful in waves."

"You'll do as I say, my dear. You must look your best."

"All right," assented Betty. "Is that all now? Is the fitting over? If you have a minute won't you please hear my speech to see if I know it?"

"I haven't time now."

At last commencement day came. But Betty had the feeling that her mother was not in the least interested.

Even when it was over, the only thing she talked about was the dresses the girls wore.

Are we like this? Do we live selfishly in our children, or do we live their joys and their dreams and their plans with them?

"Too often not, I am afraid."

YOUR CHILDREN.

By Olive Roberts Barton.

Are we interested in what our children are doing, or more interested in what concerns ourselves?

By "selves" I mean those things concerning the children that represent us farther than them.

For instance, the other day at a junior high-school commencement in which a 12-year-old girl took part, this happened.

All week the child had studied her part. She was too much excited over plans for the great day to eat her meals.

Every second she was out of the class room she was in the auditorium watching the decorations being tacked up. Every second she was at home she was going over her speech, talking about the programme—what this one was going to do, what that teacher said, what pupil had forgotten his lines at rehearsal.

Her mother was working on her dress. It was of simple plain white with a little white cape over the shoulders.

During fittings this is a sample of the conversations.

"My, but I'll be glad when this is all over! If it weren't that you could wear this dress all summer for good, I'd never be bothered making it."

"But you want me to look nice, don't you, mother! All the girls are wearing white."

"Oh yes, I want you to look nice, of course. But I just think it is all nonsense having this commencement."

A Selfish Parent.

"But it's such fun, mother. We feel so big and grown-up commencing, you know. All the boys and girls are having such a good time."

Then a terrible thought struck her. "You're coming, aren't you, mother?"

"Yes, I'll be there. I want to see what kind of a dress Mrs. McKee made for Grace. She's talked so much about it, it must be wonderful."

"It couldn't be any lovelier than this, mother."

"Well, I hope not, after all my trouble. When you wear this dress, Betty, I want you to curl your hair. I'll put it up in those little wavers I bought the other day."

TO-DAY'S RECIPE.

Apricot Meringues.

Cut a sponge cake (Genoise) into squares, triangles, or diamonds, and force some meringue mixture through a pastry tube over each piece, and bake in a very moderate oven till firm.

For the meringue:—Put the whites of 6 eggs, 1 lb. castor sugar, 1½ teaspoonful baking powder into a saucepan, standing this in a larger vessel of cold water, and whisk till the water boils, and the meringue is thick and glossy.

Remove and stir till cool, then add some vanilla flavouring, and use as described above. It may, when baked, be covered with any glaze. The following glaze would be suitable:—10 ounces cooked apricots (tinned or dried), 8 ounces castor sugar, ½ pint syrup from the fruit. Boil all together till the fruit is soft; rub through a sieve, thick and clear, and when cool it can be used.

A STUBBORN PROBLEM

Despite all the efforts that have been made to bring about a reduction in the number of unemployed in the United Kingdom, the problem still persists. This fact, indeed, has been an outstanding feature of post-war industry. Since the collapse of 1920-21, the number of unemployed has varied from one million to three millions. During those years, the usual cycles of trade have been experienced, and although 1924 was regarded as a good year, unemployment continued round about the million mark. The trouble is that the greater have been the attempts to improve production by the process of rationalisation, the more the problem appears to have been aggravated. Strangely enough, more production has meant less employment. The labour so displaced has not found re-employment in other avenues of industry. Every trade has its own unemployment. There are more workers in every industry than there are jobs to go round.

It thus appears that we have to accept the facts as they are, the immediate problem being to see what can be done to alleviate the position. One idea which is gaining ground is that the surplus labour of industry can be profitably employed by public authorities rather than to remain unemployed and dependent upon taxation and rates for subsistence. It would be better to see the money now paid in unemployment benefits transferred as a subsidy towards employment at full wages, since there is no waste equal to that of unemployment. The planning of public works by local authorities should be encouraged in a way which would enable them to take advantage of the present supply of surplus labour. To take one example, there is at present a huge shortage of work-there are more than three hundred thousand building trade workers without jobs. Civil engineering and kindred industries all have their quota of unemployed, whilst every community stands in need of some public service. Many supplies, such as water, can no longer be regarded as local in character, and to meet these requirements it would be a wise step for local authorities to urge on the Government the desirability of pressing forward these demands. All these services may not be immediately profit-producing, but it is surely wiser social economy to proceed by subsidy out of public expenditure than to allow labour to remain idle and public wants to remain unsatisfied.

It is often said by wisemen that we cannot spend more than we earn, which, of course, is true enough of the individual. But, as Mr. J. M. Keynes, the noted economist, has remarked, for the community as a whole it is much truer to say that we cannot earn more than we spend. Prices cannot rise, output and employment cannot increase, unless the first stimulus comes from the side of increased spending, especially in such matters as capital expenditure on housing and other social requirements. Taking unemployment as a whole, there is, admittedly, no one method of solution, neither is there any short-cut approach thereto. But it can at least be said that the remedy does lie in the direction of organised planning of work.

Frontiers and Tariffs.

The conference dealing with the problems of the Danubian countries brings to the fore the issue of which has been called "the devaluation of frontiers." It means that intercommunication between peoples should be such that precise boundaries will be, except for administrative purposes, of no consequence. Certainly men have made a fetish of frontiers. Between France and Switzerland is a small strip of territory that for a century has been regarded as common ground. It is really French, but since Geneva, a Swiss town, is cut off by its lake from easy access to the rest of Switzerland, and since there has been a constant intercourse of Geneva and French, who exchange their goods in the contiguous territories, it was agreed that the French customs cordon should be placed some distance behind the political frontier. For a hundred years this territory presented an excellent example of what the devaluation of frontiers means. The French barrier was removed from the Swiss frontier but it was re-erected some way behind the frontier. Why was it not abolished altogether? Why is it not abolished all over Europe? Why should not the frontier be a purely imaginary line as it is between two municipalities? Two cities which touch each other do not wage war to determine whether this or that street shall belong to one or the other. Municipal frontiers have been devalued. Why not national frontiers? It has become obvious that all European countries are inter-related, and are compelled, if they are to escape ruin, to work together. It is not only in the Danubian countries that it is economically necessary to smash the artificial barriers that keep nations imprisoned in watertight compartments. It is essential that the process of interchanges, shall be extended. "Revision of treaties," cry the vanquished, who assert that the new map of Europe has been badly drawn. "Revision means war," affirm the nations who would lose territory. The deadlock is complete. Friendly relations are blocked by this obsession of frontiers. Yet the remedy is simple. The trouble arises because nations have fixed their attention on their frontiers. Those frontiers, if they did not constitute barriers—if Germany and Poland, for example, while keeping their frontiers, demolished their barriers—would be at least relatively small barriers.

What could it matter to the German, if he were free, whether he stood on so-called German or so-called Polish soil? To move from Poland to Germany would be like moving from Lancashire to Yorkshire. The devaluation of frontiers would be a great step toward solution of Europe's problems, economic, political and social.

A MODEL DE "LUX!"

An old washing machine for motive power, a gallon tin for gas tank and a little work after school made Stanley McCrary of Seattle, Wash., the above "speed wagon" that makes 12 miles an hour and runs indefinitely on a gallon of gasoline. Stanley is shown above in his father's service station getting the old bus refuelled.

INTERESTING REVIEW ON PROGRESS.

Family Car Progenitor of Racing Cars.

By George Hunt.

"Guinea pigs of the automobile industry" was the title applied to racing drivers of a decade ago who risked their lives to drive their "speed bugs" for the thrills and chills of racing fans.

The roaring speedway was known as the crucible of automotive progress. From the flaming oval came improvements and new development in automotive design worked out under the flaming lash of demand for speed and more speed which ultimately found their way into the family cars of lay motorists. The racing car of one day became the family car of the next.

But now the tables have turned—or at least are turning. Instead of the special-built racing car pointing the way to passenger car development, the family automobile is now the progenitor of the race car. "Pepped-up" passenger cars now are threatening to crowd the costly racing creations off the speedway. The staid sedan which to-day pursues its dignified course along the boulevard to-morrow may be stripped down and revamped and setting the pace in the race for the checkered flag.

This reversal of form may be traced directly to the ascendancy of the proving ground and research laboratory as the cradle of automotive progress. Now the stock car manufacturer can develop, by means of his own extensive research facilities, advancements in automotive design far superior to the old-fashioned "cut and try" methods of the speedway.

Racing cars heretofore have been through necessity largely a matter of theory. Into them have gone the genius of racing designers—but very little practical research aside from that gained by analysis of failures in actual competition. The designer built up his car from his own fund of knowledge gained through actual experience and incorporated in the car such developments as he believed would improve its efficiency. The race driver took over the car and "with a push and a prayer" was off hopefully rather than confident that the car would hold together. Sometimes it would, but more often it didn't.

With the entrance of the revamped stock car, the element of question in design has been practically removed. The stock car comes to the speedway with literally millions of miles of test work behind it. Its design is not a matter of hopeful conjecture, but has been definitely proved by intensive research. When the driver slides in under the wheel, he may be reasonably certain that barring accidents he can go the full route. This confidence is one of the principal reasons why more and more of the stock cars trimmed down to fighting shape are making their appearances on the speedways.

In 1930, the American Automobile Association opened the gates to the semi-stock car. In previous years the permissible size of motors had been reduced almost annually until racing cars had motors of less than half the capacity of the smallest stock car. Their speed was obtained through use of superchargers, compression ratios entirely impractical for stock car use and motors of terrifically high turnover.

Three seasons ago, however, the men who guide the destinies of racing decided to change their course of race car development. They threw open the entry to all motors up to 366 cubic inches, thus admitting practically all stock cars. The supercharger was banned and motors forced to rely upon more or less conventional carburetion. With that invitation, stock car racing mounts walked in and now they most careful, seem to forget them. The snark gap should be .025 inch. The old measure of "the thickness of a thin dime" should be discarded and the plugs should be set more accurately—preferably with thickness gauges.

"THE WHOLE THING IN A NUTSHELL."

Many of us can't understand why anything should be wrong with our cars when we seem to be extremely careful in driving, never speed the motor or strain it unduly on hills or in traffic.

In fact—and here's the whole thing in a nutshell—many motorists contend that they are extremely cautious in their driving.

The slow driver usually finds himself riding the clutch—another harmful practice. Slipping the clutch plates the slightest bit causes them to run smooth, squeak and lose their effective grip. That means installing new clutch plates.

Besides, the slow poke is so sure of his driving that he sometimes fails to notice any irregularity in the engine or a rattle in the body. In other words, he is mentally off guard. He is much at ease.

Driving should be taken easily as possible. But at times should we lose our alertness? It's dangerous.

While this method of driving is commendable in some instances, it causes almost as much harm than speeding in spurts. Running the motor too slowly in high doesn't help in the least. It's a strain for which the motor isn't cut out.

Idling the motor, as the gear pedal is shoved in and the car goes sliding along slowly to a stop, is another practice more harmful than it is good. Idling falls to burn all the gas that goes into the cylinders. The result is that some of it finds its way through the piston clearance into the crankcase and causes oil dilution.

Oil dilution, in turn, affects proper lubrication and ends in scored cylinders.

A man who rolls slowly along place well ahead of about a quarter of a million dollars worth of fine handbuilt racing cars.

The question arises: How near stock is a semi-stock car? Consider the Hunt-Jenkins Special. The only important alterations made in the motor was the installation of ELECTRIC SYSTEM.

The Nerves of the Engine.

USEFUL HINTS.

As the nerve system in the human body controls the functioning of the various body parts, the electrical system in your car controls, to a great degree, the efficiency of the car and its operation. The strongest muscles in the body become paralyzed and useless if the nerves controlling them are injured or diseased. In a like manner your car cannot operate satisfactorily if the electrical system is improperly adjusted or weak at any point.

If you like to work around your car there are a number of items connected with the electrical system with which it is well to be familiar and I am listing some of them in the following paragraphs. I would like to mention however that no home work can take the place of an occasional inspection of the car by your dealer, for certain important electrical items require special equipment which is not ordinarily available to the owner.

First, I would suggest that you examine the wiring terminals and connections. Make sure that they are kept tight and free from corrosion. The connections at the storage battery, ammeter, spark coil, distributor cover, and spark plugs are particularly important, for a poor connection at any point in the ignition circuit is likely to cause hard starting and other troubles. The slip connections should be firmly seated in their sockets and the nut connections should be turned tight.

In performing this operation it is advisable that you complete your examination and adjustment of one connection at a time. In this way you can avoid any question or confusion when assembling the connections.

At the same time you are cleaning and tightening the connections, examine the wiring carefully for signs of frayed or cracked insulation. It is particularly important that the wires between the coil and distributor and to the spark plugs be free from fine cracks, if your engine is to develop full power. There can be a very definite high tension current loss even though no actual "short" occurs. If in doubt have those wires replaced.

Consider next the battery. Winter driving imposes far greater

BEST FAMILY CAR.

Sir Malcolm Campbell's Opinion.

"If I were asked which, in my opinion, was the best family type of car in the £400 to £450 class," writes Sir Malcolm Campbell in the "Field," "I should name, without hesitation, the 16/60 Humber, and, having recently acquired one of these cars, my regard for them is now greater than ever." Incidentally, it may be mentioned that the 16/60 Humber on which Dr. John C. Adams was awarded First Prize in his class in the Scottish Rally had a dark blue Saloon body light blue Wings, while Commander S. Betts-Brown's Snipe, which gained Second Prize, was a two-door, drop-head, four-seater Coupe, finished in an attractive shade of green and equipped with a visor, two spare wheels with Ace covers, etc.

age motorist realizes, and the chances are that your battery may have deteriorated to a low point of efficiency. Drop around to a battery specialist or your service station and take a hydrometer reading. Then remember the necessity of frequent inspection and get the habit. Just a few days ago I had the distasteful experience of selling a customer a new battery merely because he had allowed his plates to go dry.

I'll bet there are a lot of motorists that never pay the slightest attention to that little gauge on the dash known as the ammeter. It is the watchdog of the electrical system, and should always receive the driver's attention. When the pointer is resting on the scale marked "charge" it indicates that the generator is charging the battery; when it shows "discharge" the battery is discharging. If you have a free wheeling model and your motor is idling the ammeter should show a slight "charge." If you have one of the preceding cars equipped with a conventional transmission, the engine may idle at a lower speed and the ammeter show a slight "discharge." When the motor is running in high, with lights out, about ten miles an hour or more it should be charging. If not, you had better go to a service station and see what's the trouble. Don't play with it yourself unless you are a skilled electrician.

Do you ever check your spark plugs to see that they are set accurately? Some drivers turn the

IGNORING THE SPARE TYRE.

The Problem of Battery Terminals.

It seldom occurs to some motorists to look after the spare tyre. This is prone to deterioration just as much as those which are in regular use, and if it be neglected for a long time many miles of useful service may be lost. When the tyre pressures are tested each week and inflation carried out, test the spare-tyre pressure at the same time; if necessary add more air. How often one sees a punctured tyre replaced by one which is only semi-inflated, whereas a little attention would have made all the difference and saved the bother of pumping up the tyre by the roadside.

Regular testing of the tyre pressures is an important part of car maintenance; it ensures the best service from the covers and, of course, makes for greater safety.

A great deal of the trouble which is apt to develop in the electrical details of a car in course of time can be traced to badly made joints in the wiring. Three essential conditions must obtain in any joint or connexion which has to convey an electrical current, these being a sufficiently large contact surface, clean surfaces and tightness. The first item is specially important when the flow of current is considerable. Given large surface and intimate metal-to-metal contact, the tightness is necessary to prevent the intrusion between their surfaces of corrosion or foreign matter which would obstruct the flow of the current.

The terminals of accumulators are extremely important; they are generally of the leaded-past type with a clip clamped tightly to the post and a stranded and tinned copper-wire cable averted tightly into a socket in the clip. When corrosion has become serious it is often found that, after cleaning the parts, the clamp can be tightened without actually becoming clamped to the post. Tightening the clamping bolt may grip the lugs together, but leaves the clip making contact only in one or two small places. The area of contact if of insufficient size to convey the current from or to the battery.

In a bad case this may mean failure to charge properly, a big load on the dynamo, and a chance of blowing a fuse, burning out the lamps' bulbs or damaging the insulation of the dynamo wiring.

These connexions from the dynamo to the accumulator and from the accumulator to earth are therefore most important. Unless they are right, irritating troubles and, possibly, expensive damage to some component will result.

Even when an owner is careful to look after the battery terminals the connexion of the earth lead to the frame is often neglected, because it is usually tucked away in an awkward position. Often it simply consists of a bolt and nut through the chassis frame (sometimes under and behind the valances—a most awkward place), which clamp a flat eye on the earth wire to the channel member. A strong spring washer under the nut will ensure permanent tightness, and the whole affair, after being cleaned and tightened, should preferably be coated with red-lead paint.

Such a joint need never be undone, as the terminal at the battery can be released when it becomes necessary to take the battery away from the car.

If similar principles be applied to all the other terminals and connexions throughout the system, troubles from the electrical equipment of the car will be practically eliminated.

DUAL RATIO

Dual Ratio, exclusive with Auburn and special equipment in all Custom Models gives you the equivalent of two cars in one; in the hills a most efficient hill climber; on the straight-away a smoother, quieter performance at high speeds with less wear and tear on the motor and running parts. On the boulevard or in the country with your car moving 20 to 60 M.P.H., turn the Dual Ratio lever on the instrument panel from Low Ratio to High Ratio and while your car continues at the same speed the motor speed drops down one-third of its former speed. Less vibration, quieter, and more economical.

Rockne Six Offers Quality at Low Price

Below—A smart V-shaped radiator shell features the modern styling achieved in the Rockne Six. One-piece steel wings lend the swank of custom sedan cars. The wide, symmetrical bumper is faced with chromium as are radiator shell and headlamps. The radiator, bonnet, top and the front and rear mudguards effectively blend in an ensemble that pleases the eye while fulfilling the requirements of the latest research in motor car wind resistance.

Long, low and aerodynamically streamlined is the Rockne Six "75" five passenger, 4-door sedan shown above. The powerful six cylinder motor develops 72 horsepower and assures a smooth, consistent high-cruising speed. The unusual chassis length—114 inches—relieves it of that condensed appearance which makes the low price of other inexpensive cars so evident. Convertible sedan, convertible roadster and coupe models also are available on the Rockne "75" chassis. Wire wheels are standard equipment, as are free wheeling and synchronized shifting.

Abundant roominess; adjustable front seat; three-spoke, steel core steering wheel, adjustable steering column and aviation type instruments feature the Rockne Six "75." Free Wheeling control is located on facia at left of steering column. Hand brake lever and gear change lever are forward in the Rockne Clear Way Front Compartment. This new positioning allows the driver to enter or leave through either doorway with ease.

The long wheelbase of the Rockne "75" is supplemented by an extra wide rear tread which not only accentuates the exterior proportions of the car but makes possible a wider rear seat than has been customary in cars of this price. The interiors are upholstered and furnished in the manner of costlier cars. The Rockne Six is manufactured by Rockne Motors Corporation, a Studebaker subsidiary, with offices and factory in Detroit, Michigan, U.S.A.

Note the slanting louvers, sloping radiator and sloping wind screen of the Rockne Six "65" convertible roadster. This ultra-modern car, mounted on a 110-inch wheelbase chassis and powered by a 66 h.p. engine, has been designed and built to standards of quality never before achieved in the low-priced field. The power plants of the Rockne Six have that notable freedom from vibration that is inherent in all Studebaker sponsored engines. In keeping with the practice followed in high priced cars, engineers have further deflected vibration by cushioning Rockne engines in live rubber at all four points of suspension, as illustrated at right.

ACCIDENTS LOWER IN WELL-LIGHTED CITIES.

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 3. Cities having improved street illumination show in general a better automobile accident record at night than cities where the degree of illumination is inferior. It is indicated by a recent study of the rate of automobile accident fatalities and the per capita cost of street illumination in 46 cities with a total population of more than 25,000,000.

Between 5 and 8 p.m. in May, June, July and August last year there were 386 deaths from automobile accidents and 9516 non-fatal accidents in the 46 cities. During the same hours in October, November, December, last year, and January, this year, there were 794 fatalities and 20,644 non-fatal automobile accidents. This comparison is brought out by R. E. Simpson, illuminating engineer of the Travellers, who made the survey.

By accounting for the logical increase of automobile accidents in the four winter months because of seasonal and road-surface conditions, Simpson found there was an increase of 392 fatalities and 10,177 non-fatal automobile accidents during the four months of winter over the four summer months in the 46 cities from 5 to 8 p.m. The conclusion is that the increase in the four winter months over the same period of time in the summer months is due largely to inadequate illumination. Although in the four summer months there was practically no difference in the rate of deaths per 100,000 population from automobile accidents on the basis of per capita cost of street illumination, in the four winter months when darkness prevails for the most part from 5 to 8 p.m., the rate of deaths from automobile accidents per 100,000 population was downward as the per capita cost of street illumination increased.

In the winter months from 5 to 8 p.m. deaths were 6 per 100,000 of population in cities averaging around 20 cents per capita for cost of street illumination, as against 4 per 100,000 population in cities with a per capita street lighting cost of a dollar, and slightly more than two deaths per 100,000 population in cities with a per capita cost of $2 for street illumination.

The total annual cost of street lighting in the 46 cities was determined as amounting to $27,199,000, or a per capita cost of $1.06.

MORRIS CAR ONE OF THE FINEST.

Journalist Praises Isis Six After Sydney to Orange Trip.

"I had the opportunity of testing, under severe conditions," writes the Motor Editor of the "Australasian World," who recently drove a Morris Isis saloon over the 180-mile stretch between Sydney and Orange. "The capabilities of one of the finest British cars it has ever been my good fortune to drive. I refer to the Morris Isis Six."

"This was the first time that I have driven an Isis, and I have not travelled the Orange-Sydney road for 18 months. The mountain road was excellent, and we made good time along it. We expected to arrive at Orange at 10.30 p.m., but landed there at 9.5 p.m. Since we stopped only 25 minutes on the run for ten, this gave us a dead running time of 3 3/4 hours for a total distance of 170 1/2 miles. I think the average motorist will grant that this is pretty good time. The average speed works out at somewhere near 47.8 m.p.h.

Top-Gear Performance "At no time during the trip did the engine show any signs of overworking, but was silent and smooth running, always with that little in reserve. The brakes were perfect. Heat from the motor was never excessive, although the day temperature was well above normal. The Isis excels indeed for roadability. Many corners I was able to take 'flat out.' There is a total absence of vibration at all speeds, and the car is undoubtedly a top-gear performer of the first water. On only the stiffest of grades was it necessary to change down. Many cars fastened to my tail but not one kept the pace for more than a mile.

"Judging by the performance of the Morris Isis Six, I am more than ever convinced that the British car manufacturers are turning out a model that is wholly built for Australian conditions."

$725,000,000 IN TAXES.

Defeat of Increase Bill. BREAKING POINT.

San Francisco, Aug. 8. With the addition of the new Federal tax, motorists of the United States are now paying gasoline taxes at the rate of approximately $2,000,000 a day, according to estimates reported by the California State Automobile Association. The report is based upon figures compiled at the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the American Automobile Association, with which the California motorists' organization is affiliated. The figures indicate that the total gasoline tax collections will exceed $725,000,000 for the entire country during the coming 12 months.

Tax Increased Further. Last year car owners paid $536,000,000 in States gasoline taxes. This total will be swelled in 1932 to $675,000,000, exclusive of the new Federal gasoline tax which went into effect last month.

The Federal tax of 1 cent per gallon will, it is estimated, derive an additional $160,000,000 from motorists in this form of taxation, making a grand total of around $725,000,000 for the burden of gasoline taxes.

In the face of this existing high level, new efforts for gasoline taxes are being constantly advanced, the automobile association points out.

At Breaking Point Commenting on the endeavours to impose further exactions on the motorist, the association declares that such taxes are justified only up to the point where revenues are returned to motorists in the form of highway development and that a halt must be called when car owners are singled out to bear a special burden for general governmental purposes.

Numerous recent de. c. of proposals for increased State gasoline taxes and for new local gasoline levies indicate that the pyramiding of such taxes has reached the breaking point, the automobile association asserts.

A DRIVING TEST.

An American Police Experiment.

It is astonishing how little time is saved by the impatient motorist who weaves recklessly when driving in traffic. This was shown conclusively by a test made over a period of one month by the Rochester (U.S.A.) police department.

Every morning when traffic was heavy two cars were sent from a given point to police headquarters some distance away. One drove as rapidly as possible without actually causing an accident. It cut in and out of traffic and ignored traffic lights when possible. The other was driven carefully.

When the reports from both cars for the month were tabulated, it was found that the recklessly driven car had gained an average of only a minute and a half on the three-mile course. In other words, by endangering themselves and others, the drivers of the recklessly driven cars had gained only about half a minute in each mile.

One morning a police car followed a private car that was being driven dangerously, and at the end of the drive, the private motorist was found in his office with his feet on his desk reading a newspaper. He had had no good reason for speeding.

PARKING ON HILLS.

How to Ensure Safety.

Although the hand brake of most cars, assuming that it is in adjustment, is fully capable of holding a car on any gradient on which the car is likely to be stopped, uphill or down, it is advisable to adopt precautions additional to applying the brake fully before the car is left unattended.

For one thing, an interfering person may get into the car and touch the brake, causing it to be released during the absence of the owner.

The simplest precaution is to leave the car so that if the brakes should be released it will be held up by the roadside kerb. If the front of the car is pointing downhill the steering wheels may be locked over to have that effect, while if it is facing up a hill the car as a whole may be left at a slight angle relative to the edge of the road.

The plan adopted by some drivers of leaving the bottom gear engaged is not to be recommended. For one thing, it is not likely to be effective on a really steep gradient, for the weight of the car will overcome the compression in the cylinders; for another thing, the fact that the car is in gear may be forgotten when the time comes to start the engine again, which may result in its jerking forward.

THE FORD.

Products in British Empire.

The average member of the British motoring public is liable to become confused regarding the particular activities of the Ford Motor Co. of America, the Ford Motor Co. of Canada, and the English company.

Mr. W. R. Campbell, president of the Ford Motor Co. of Canada, has been spending some little time in England, and has taken the opportunity of conferring with Sir Percival Perry, who controls the British Ford Co., so that the policies of their respective companies shall not interfere with each other.

Some twenty-five years ago a concession was granted to the Canadian Ford Co., which gave them the sole right to manufacture and sell Ford motor-cars, trucks, etc., throughout the British Empire—with the exception of the United Kingdom.

Mr. Campbell and Sir Percival Perry have entered into an agreement on behalf of their respective companies to ensure that Ford products throughout the British Empire are supplied either from Dagenham, England, or, Walker-ville, Canada.

The new 8-h.p. Ford car will be manufactured by the Ford Motor Co., Ltd., Dagenham, and marketed and sold throughout the British Empire by the Ford Motor Co. of Canada, Ltd., and its subsidiary companies in India, Australia, South Africa, Singapore, etc.

The new 8-cylinder Ford car is now in full production at the Canadian factory, and arrangements have been made for the sale of the complete vehicle and its component parts by the Canadian company to the British company or distribution not only in the United Kingdom but also throughout Europe and other portions of territories controlled by the British company.

Mr. Campbell is a whole-hearted Empire Free Trader. He stated that he believed the British-built cars would be welcomed into Canada and throughout the Empire without duty, and that the Canadian or Colonies were, therefore, also granted a free British market.

He also stated that there are only two countries in the British Empire and Dominions actually producing cars, and these were the United Kingdom and Canada. Any duties levied by other Dominions

A FAMOUS CLUB

170th ANNIVERSARY OF BOODLE'S

Boodle's, the second or third oldest club in the world, will hold this autumn its one hundred and seventieth anniversary dinner.

The club was founded by Mr. Boodle in 1762 in a house in Pall Mall, and it has been for a hundred and fifty years in its present premises in St. James's-street. These premises were designed, it is believed, by a pupil of Robert Adam, and recall in the elegant exterior and the famous rooms within that quiet and dignified old London, modest and unpretending in its aspect, that our grandfathers used to know and admire. Boodle's, in fact, is a wonderful example of a club with so long a history still preserving its old-world atmosphere and charm.

Originally it was known as the Savoir Vivre, and was noted for its costly gaieties. Two thousand guineas was spent by its members in 1774 on a masquerade at the Pantheon. Then, as now, it was a club for country gentlemen. Masters of foxhounds were prominent amongst its members, and at the end of the eighteenth and the beginning of the nineteenth century it had so many baronets on its list that it was a saying of that day that "Every Sir John belongs to Boodle's," whilst one of Gillray's caricatures representing Sir Frank Standish sitting at a window of the club, was given the title "A Standing Dish at Boodle's."

In the early part of the last century there was a good deal of high gambling. One of the faro tables then in use is still preserved. A snuff-box it still possesses is another relic of those times. Pictures have been drawn by the late Mr. Ralph Nevill and other writers of the club's history of the old elections presided over by the proprietor. For a number of years, and almost up to the time of his death in 1895, Mr. Gayner, a noted occupant of that position used to take his seat by the ballot-box near the window in the back room on the ground floor, whilst in the adjoining front room opening off it were assembled the members.

When a candidate was proposed, they would walk across, deposit white or black balls and retire again to the front room. After a short time Mr. Gayner would shout "elected" or "not elected" as the case might be. It was often said that he never troubled to make any close scrutiny of the balls, and that no candidate whom he considered suitable for election was ever rejected.

It was during his reign that the Duke of Beaufort and a number of other old members retired owing to a dispute about the custom of pooling the cost of the wine at the house dinner. Some of the younger members who drank little resented the custom, and Mr. Gayner agreed to have it altered. The Duke, however, and the "old guard" protested against the change and retired.

Mr. Gayner carried on the club on very generous lines, and members were allowed extraordinary credit. At the time of his death it was said that he was owed as much as £10,000.

After his death and that of his daughter, who succeeded him, the club had to face very critical times. Certain members, however, stepped forward, and a complete reorganisation was the result. The club was placed in the hands of trustees and a committee, and Capt. Wombwell was appointed secretary. There have been several secretaries since that time, the gentleman who now so ably fills that office being Capt. Wynyard Wright, who was appointed from the Royal Air Force Club.

The club was slightly modernised on being taken over by its members. Electric light took the place of oil lamps and candles. Good old customs, however, such as evening dress for dinner in the coffee room, were retained, and still remain, though a small but very attractive room is provided for members passing through London who find it inconvenient to dress.

Amongst notable members of the club in its earlier days was Edward Gibbon. King Edward, when Prince of Wales, presided at meetings of the Royal Yacht Squadron in the drawing-room. At the end of the last century the membership numbered six hundred, and included Lord Rosebery, Lord Lansdale, Lord Zetland (still a member), the Duke of Portland, the Duke of Leeds, the Hon. George Lascelles, Prince Victor Duleep Singh, Mr. Alfred Rothschild, and many other leading representatives of the world of hunting and shooting and racing, yachting and

JACOB FACTOR SETTLEMENT

£360,000 FOR £600,000 CLAIMS

The claim by British investors against Mr. Jacob Factor, formerly managing director of the Broad Street Press, Ltd., for £600,000 has been settled for £360,000 in cash and securities which Mr. Factor has agreed to hand over to the Senior Official Receiver.

The settlement, which has been accepted by the requisite 90 per cent. of the shareholders, is subject to the approval of the High Court.

The terms of the agreement are contained in a letter which the Senior Official Receiver has sent to the creditors of the Broad Street Press, Ltd., and the shareholders of the Vulcan Copper Mines, Ltd. and the Rhodesia Border Mining Corporation, Ltd.

It states that Jacob Factor left England shortly before the date of the compulsory winding-up order and is resident in Chicago, beyond the jurisdiction of the court in England.

"Proceedings in Chicago are still pending," states the letter, "and are being strongly contested on both sides and several attempts to reach a compromise have failed. As a result, however, of difficult and protracted negotiations... the agreement has now been concluded with the legal advisers of Mr. Factor."

5s. In The £. "After careful consideration of all the circumstances," adds the Official Receiver, "I came to the conclusion that it would be in the best interests of the creditors to compromise these matters on these terms. I estimate that the amount payable to me under the agreement should enable a distribution of about 5s. in the £ to be made."

It is understood that the settlement does not affect the proceedings against Mr. Factor for his extradition to England.

He was alleged to have been concerned in share frauds in Great Britain and on February 11 last, Judge Carpenter, of the Federal Bench in Chicago, dismissed an application by the British Government for his extradition to England. He held that the alleged offence was not a felony under Illinois law.

Three months later it was stated that Factor was willing to settle with the British investors for £300,000 on condition that litigation ceased.

U.S. BOXERS WIN IN JAPAN

ing practically closed. When Taga went back to his corner for the one minute rest at the end of the third, his eye was damaged to such an extent that it impaired his vision. With the opening of the fourth round, Taga's seconds wisely tossed in the towel and halted the grueling argument.

BRENT OPENS BRILLIANTLY.

Brent opened the first round brilliantly by rocking his foe with devastating punches that had the Japanese on the verge of a knock-out. Their battle shifted in favour of the Japanese in the next, as Brent seemed dazed and weakened by Taga's dynamic punches, but the negro fighter displayed superior ring tactics and saved himself by clinching.

In the third, Brent again displayed superior punching power and rocked the Japanese all over the ring with deadly punches and terrific uppercuts that had the Imperial fighter on the defensive for most of this round. Taga was bleeding badly from the mouth and nose when the bell ended the round. His left eye was also badly damaged and the towel was tossed in the next round in order to save the Japanese from unnecessary punishment. Taga was willing to continue with the fight, but it was a different story altogether with his seconds and Dr. Hara, the attending physician.

Donny Reyes managed to copy the decision over Matsuo of the Nihon Club in the six round semi-final after six rounds of furious slugging. Referee Sato was booed when the decision was rendered.

Don Stewart, after scoring two knockdowns, and having his rival on the point of collapsing from his damaging punches, was declared the victor over Umpai in the six round special event.

The following were the results: T. Tezuka (Nihon), 126 pounds, defeated T. Nagahara (Kokusai), 126 pounds; R. Umemo (Nihon), 110, defeated I. Kanazawa (Kokusai), 110; K. Hayashi (Nihon), 118, defeated Ichiro Yagao (Kwanton), 118; Bunji Yasuda (Imperial), 126, defeated Kid Willie (Nihon), 123; special event, Don Stewart (Imperial), 135, defeated K. Umei (Nihon), 135; semi-final, Donny Reyes (Toyo), 115, defeated F. Matsuo (Nihon), 117; double main event, Sydney Brent (Seattle), 142, defeated Yasuo Taga (Imperial), 146, by a technical knockout in the fourth round; Johnny Crisman (West Indies), 133, defeated Jiro Kumagai (Nihon), 141, by a technical knockout in the seventh round.

New Treasurers.

The appointment of Messrs. Linstand and Davis as Treasurers has been fully justified, for the financial work had become so heavy that we could no longer expect it to be done by an hon. treasurer. Mr. E. O. Murphy rendered great service in that capacity prior to the passing of the accounts to the new treasurers. Considering the heavy expenditure of the past year our financial position is very satisfactory. To defray the cost of the new building we have found it necessary only to raise $3,000 in loans from members. In a short time we should be free of debt.

Hon. Secretary Tributed.

I am sure the members of the Committee would like me to express our appreciation of the untiring energy of the Hon. Secretary, Mr. E. R. Price. I know that my duties as Chairman of the Committee have been lightened by having such a proficient secretary. We are pleased to say that our relationships with the military authorities are as cordial as ever and we have every reason to expect they will remain so. We would congratulate Mr. F. E. A. Remedios on again winning the Club Championship and also the other winners of the various competitions held during the past year. The incoming Committee will find the affairs of the Club in a healthy condition and with the assurance of the loyal backing of the members we can look forward with every confidence to the future.

I now have pleasure in moving the adoption of the Report and the statement of accounts. Will some-one second it?

Mr. V. C. Labrum seconded, and the proposition was carried unanimously.

The election of officers was then proceeded with. The following were elected:

President Mr. V. C. Labrum.

Vice President, Mr. D. C. Wilson.

Captain, Mr. J. McKnight.

Hon. Secretary, Mr. E. R. Price.

Committee members: Messrs. J. D. Thomson, W. Groves, J. H. Hunt, A. L. Eastman, J. McKnight, and G. H. Russell.

Messrs. Linstand and Davis were re-elected.

LABOUR SPLIT WIDENS

ACTIVITIES OF RIVAL GROUPS

The decision of the I.L.P. to break away from the Labour Party has aroused sharp controversy in the West of Scotland. There is no prospect of healing the breach. The disaffiliationists and the affiliationists—to give the groups their rather cumbersome names—are preparing to go their several ways, and active propaganda among the rank and file has already begun.

Mr. Maxton, the leader of the rebels, has been contemplating the rupture following the Bradford resolution from a quiet West Highland retreat on the shores of Loch Fyne. Bradford, he says, has given a clear mandate for a breakaway from entanglements of every kind. He is not afraid of going into the wilderness. "The whole working-class," he has declared, "is there just now, and a very hungry wilderness they find it. We will be happy to be with them, but we won't be there for forty years."

The disruptive move is deplored by Mr. Tom Johnston, Lord Privy Seal in the last Labour Government. It is in his view a fratricidal war on the left flank of the Labour Party, and he will have no part "in such folly." Mr. P. J. Dollan, who has resigned from the chairmanship of the Scottish Council of the I.L.P., and is looked upon as the Scottish leader of the affiliationists, has challenged Mr. Maxton to produce his plans for the revolution, which is to bring about a new social order, but Mr. Maxton remains unmoved by the taunts of his critics.

The strength of the rival groups will not be known until meetings and conferences have been held, but of 44 Labour members of Glasgow Corporation only seven have decided to follow the flag of Mr. Maxton. The Clydeside M.P.s are divided. Perhaps the most interesting announcement so far made is that Mr. David Kirkwood may take office in the body which is to remain loyal to the Labour Party.

K.C.C. TENNIS FINALS

FULL WEEK-END OF MATCHES

A TRIUMPH OF ORGANISATION

Given fine weather, the Kowloon Cricket Club tennis tournament, which has been so efficiently organised during the past fortnight, will, this week-end, come to a conclusion.

This afternoon, the most important finals—those of the senior and junior championships and the ladies championship—will be played off, and to-morrow will be devoted to the last stage of the handicap events together with the final of the consolation event.

This is probably the first time in the history of local tennis, that a tournament of the magnitude of the K.C.C. event, has been completed within a fortnight, and the achievement reflects the highest possible credit on Mr. D. S. Green and his committee assistants, as well as the competitors for their co-operation.

It demonstrates quite clearly that given the proper organisation, tennis tournaments need never extend over months as is usually the case in Hongkong, and it is to be hoped that from this example, the Hongkong Championships may learn a useful lesson.

The week-end programme is appended.

Mixed Doubles.

(semi-finals)
E. C. Fincher and Miss O. Dalziel beat G. A. White and Miss Griffiths 6-1, 6-4.

E. F. Fincher and Mrs. McTavish beat A. E. P. Guest and Mrs. McCaw 6-1, 7-5.

Consolation Event.

C. J. Tachet and Mrs. Old beat R. Buchanan and Mrs. Way 7-9, 6-4, 6-3.

W. Ohl and Mrs. Blandford beat F. Goodwin and F. E. Skinner, w.o.

W. W. Hirst and F. S. W. Smith, w.o.

To-day's Programme

Senior Championship.
E. C. Fincher v. A. E. P. Guest

Junior Championship.
P. O. Dunne v. G. A. White.

Handicap Singles "A."
(semi-final)
W. C. Hung v. G. C. Burnett.

Consolation Event.
R. B. Hamby and Mrs. F. S. W. Smith v. A. Philippens and Mrs. White; J. S. Smith and Miss S. Dalziel v. A. E. Collins and Mrs. Hamby; A. H. Dinneen and M. Rakusen v. F. Kengelbacker and Miss Kacker.

League Tennis

In an interesting D. League game between South China Athletic Association and Craigengower Cricket Club at King's Park yesterday afternoon the contestants obtained 2½ sets each, the remaining two sets were unfinished owing to falling light.

The match is to be re-played at King's Park to-day at 4 p.m.

Yesterday's results were:
J. W. Leonard and G. Lai beat Ho and Luk 6-4; lost to Lee and Lee 2-6; unfinished against Chan and Luk 4-5.

W. J. Howard and Y. Hachuma beat Ho and Luk 6-4; drew with Chan and Luk 6-6; unfinished Lee and Lee 4-3.

E. Zimmermann and R. Choa lost to Chan and Luk 3-6; lost to Lee and Lee 2-6; beat Ho and Luk 6-4.

U.S. Boxers Win in Japan

Kumagai Dislocates Right Arm

Fighting before a capacity crowd of fight fans that packed the spacious Tokyo amphitheatre to the rafters, the two American negro pugilists came out successfully in their first appearances, both winning their bouts by technical knockouts.

The featured eight round main attraction between Johnny Kid Crismas of the West Indies and Jiro Kumagai, Japanese welter-weight, ended in the seventh round when Kumagai dislocated his right arm to such an extent that he was unable to protect himself from the barrage of devastating blows which the dusky scrapper rained on him. Referee Ogino wisely halted the bout and declared Crismas the winner. Kumagai, it seems, hurt his right arm badly in the end of the sixth round. The encounter was a close affair from the opening gong until the fatal seventh.

Kumagai opened the first round with his usual rushes and landed a shower of blows that had the negro on the defensive and puzzled, but Kumagai's punches lacked steam. In the next canto, the negro scrapper fought aggressively, and delivered one-two punches to Kumagai's head and jaw. Kumagai, in this round, failed to make any impression. Crismas waded into Kumagai and advanced by delivering right hand smashes, but Kumagai drove the negro scrapper to the ropes to throw wicked punches to the waistline. Crismas came out unmoled.

Crismas was coming along better as the fight progressed and fought craftily in the fourth round. In the fifth, Crismas centred on one-two punches to the body and jaw that caught Kumagai when he waded into him. During the closing session of the argument, Kumagai was clipped flush on the point of the chin with a devastating right hand smash that floored him for no count. Kumagai himself was surprised when he tasted Crismas's hitting power.

CRISMAS WILLING.

The sixth round found the American scrapper fighting with willingness, speed and genuine boxing ability, which had the crowd going wild. All the Japanese could do was to drive him to the ropes to rain harmless blows to the negro's waistline, of which Crismas took no notice and came out smiling to offer a two-listed attack which finally shattered Kumagai's defensive and had him worried.

BADMINTON DISPLAY

BIG TAIKOO CROWD ENTERTAINED

DOUBLES-AND SINGLES

Judging by the attendance and the interest displayed in the demonstrations at Taikoo last night it will not be very long before badminton is established as one of the premier pastimes in Hongkong.

The Taikoo Recreation Club was filled to capacity for the exhibition doubles given by Messrs. W. O. Williams, D. H. Hazell, A. E. Collins and S. A. Gray, and the sharp and well contested rallies were greeted with rounds of applause.

The splendid Taikoo court provided a admirable arena for the contests, and there is small doubt that with such facilities the game at North Point will quickly develop.

In addition to a doubles match between Williams and Gray opposed to Collins and Hazell, which the latter won by the odd game in three, two singles games were played, Williams beating Collins and Hazell overcoming Gray. Though the players had never before played in partnership, they quickly settled down, and despite an occasional misunderstanding in tactics, gave an interesting display, punctuated by some especially exciting rallies and recoveries.

After the badminton refreshments and dancing were enjoyed, whilst a collection was taken on behalf of the Ministering Children's League.

The arrangements for the evening were in the capable hands of Mr. Russell (Hon. Secretary) and the Taikoo Recreation Club committee, and they left nothing to be desired.

Kumagai went back to his corner with a sprained hand, judging by his peculiar movements. As soon as the seventh opened, Crismas was on his man, delivering devastating lefts to the body and smashing rights to the jaw that had Kumagai defenceless. Kumagai's fighting spirit and stamina faded, and the Japanese murmured something to Referee Ogino, who did not hesitate in stopping the fight. This was Kumagai's first defeat on a technical knockout.

The other eight round bout between Sydney Brent of Seattle and Yasuo Tuga of the Imperial Boxing Club came to a halt in the fourth canto when the attending physician asked that the fight be stopped due to Tuga's left eye being (Continued on Page 7.)

SUTCLIFFE & WYATT

WIND UP SEASON BRILLIANTLY

M.C.C. TOURISTS BEAT THE "REST"

INDIANS DRAW

London, Sept. 9. Opposed to Leveson-Gower's team at Scarborough, the All-Indian representatives brought their tour to a close, and with the meeting of the M.C.C. Australian tourists and the Rest of England at Folkestone, there now remains only the champion county versus the Rest to ring down the curtain on the English cricket season of 1932.

The M.C.C. representatives defeated the Rest of England by 241, the match being featured by the brilliance of R.E.S. Wyatt, who scored 81 in the tourists' first innings of 213 and 171 not out in the return visit, when the imposing score of 401 for 5 declared was made. In compiling this innings, Wyatt took four hours and hit 19 boundaries.

Owing to a mutilation in the cable, it is not possible to give the details of the England scores, but it is known that Frank Woolley rattled up 75.

SUTCLIFFE 106.

The Indians drew their final match of the tour. Leveson-Gower's team scored freely in their initial visit to the crease and the declaration was made at 305 for 5, Sutcliffe helping himself to another three-figure innings (106) and his colleague Leyland assisting with 70.

The Indians responded well, but were in arrears on the first innings, their total reaching 280. Amar Singh wound up a brilliant tour by scoring 107, whilst V.W.C. Jupp captured 5 for 86.

The match dragged out to a slow finish with the home team hitting up 99 without loss in the return visit.—Reuter.

KOWLOON GOLF CLUB.

SATISFACTORY POSITION AT ANNUAL MEETING

A satisfactory financial position was disclosed to members at the eighth annual general meeting of the Kowloon Golf Club, held last evening at the Y.M.C.A. under the chairmanship of Mr. J. H. Hunt.

The Hon. Secretary (Mr. E. R. Price) having read the notice convening the meeting, the Chairman said:

Gentlemen—The annual report and statement of accounts have been circulated to the members so I will now formally move their adoption. We have had a most satisfactory year in every respect, the outstanding feature, of course, being the opening of the new Club House by H. E. Major-Gen. J. W. Sandilands. I should, again, like to thank H. E. for his interest in the Club and for the gift of his photograph which occupies an honoured place in the Club House. We are also grateful to the Hon. Mr. W. E. L. Shenton for his gift of a clock and our thanks are due to all who have in many ways helped in matters connected with the building. The Committee was gratified in receiving the sum of $270 (Continued on Page 7.)

CINEMA SCREENINGS.

NOTES SUPPLIED BY THE THEATRES

A mystery woman, some call her. To the world, which sees her on the screen, she is the personification of vivacity, bubbling over with life, care-free in her dazzling beauty. Yet Hollywood, after three years, admits it doesn't understand Lily Damita. At times she seems to be brooding; the next moment, she sparkles with gaiety and crackles with wit. Then lapse into a mood that squelches conversation. Back of all Lily's success as a volcanic personality on the screen and stage, both in America and Europe, is a seriousness born of early struggles in her childhood ambition to be a great actress.

Lily Damita's role of a penniless Paris girl who crashes high society in Paramount's musical romance, "This Is The Night," which is now showing at the King's Theatre, is no more romantic than her own real life story.

Lily first saw the light of day, in Paris. Her mother was an actress, and because of the transient life of the family, the girl was placed in a convent near Lisbon, Portugal. Until her eighth year she was educated in convents in Spain and Greece.

Already dreaming of the stage and the entertainment world, Lily persuaded her mother to take her from a convent to where she could receive training toward her goal. Enrolled in the Conservatoire Dancing School of Belgium, she remained there until war swept the little country known as the cockpit of Europe.

"Careless Lady"

Minna Gombell is known to thousands of film fans as one of the most distinctive comedienne in pictures. In Hollywood however, she holds an additional claim to fame. For sound engineers declare she has the finest recording voice of any actress on the screen. It is an honour that not only accounts for some of her popularity with the public, but one which also led to her selection to coach the younger women players at the Fox studio in vocal work, diction and other phases of an actress' profession.

Miss Gombell's latest role is that of Yvette, the sophisticated New Yorker who guides the ambitious Joan Bennett's footsteps along the path of worldly wisdom in "Careless Lady," the comedy-romance coming to the King's Theatre next Thursday. John Boles has the masculine lead in this offering, and Weldon Heyburn, Nora Lane, Raul Roulien and other favourites are in the cast. Kenneth MacKenna directed from the story by Reita Lambert, with Guy Bolton writing the screen play and dialogue.

"The Beloved Bachelor"

Dorothy Jordan, as the young girl who adds herself to the list of those who fall in love with Paul Lukas in "The Beloved Bachelor," is one of a score who have had that honour in the moving pictures.

In "The Beloved Bachelor," which is now showing at the Oriental Theatre, Miss Jordan divides the attention of the handsome Paul with Vivienne Osborne, but it is Dorothy Jordan who lands him finally, after a series of tender and touching scenes. Miss Goldwyn-Mayer for the part she plays in "The Beloved Bachelor." The cast also includes Charles Ruggles, star of "The Girl Habit," Leni Stengel, John Breiden, Marjorie Gateson and Harold Minjir.

More ravishing than ever, Ann Harding should prove a tremendous attraction when "Devotion" is to be shown at the Central Theatre to-morrow.

Perhaps never has this star had a vehicle more worthy of her talents than this whimsical story of a young English girl who believes everything fair in love.

Although basically romantic drama, "Devotion" has been handled with a light touch which seasons its interesting plots with gay mirth. Audiences will remember it as one of the year's most pleasant bits of entertainment. And Ann Harding reveals a decided flair for light comedy in the many situations in the story.

Associated with Miss Harding in presenting the story on the screen is a cast of unusually capable players. Lewie Howard, the handsome and talented young man who won a recognized place by his work in "Outward Bound," "A Free Soul" and other pictures, acquits himself magnificently in the romantic lead opposite Harding. The sterling thespian, Robert Williams, remembered for his work in "Rebound" and "Common Law" contributes another interesting characterization.

OFFICIAL SUMMARY BY THE STOCK EXCHANGE

Sept. 9.

The bear movement referred to in the previous week's Summary would seem to have exhausted itself early in the current week, and rates became more stabilised and less subject to violent fluctuations.

Later, an upward trend is making itself felt, and China Lights, Cements and Hotels close higher on the week. In the investment section, Unions have moved up substantially, closing with buyers bidding $485, and in the Mining section, Benguet Consolidated advanced to $17.

The general tone of the market is steady at the close.

POLO FINAL

K.O.Y.L.I. CUP WON BY THE BORDERERS

By five goals to two, the polo team of the 24th Regiment (South Wales Borderers) defeated a team from the Royal Artillery in the final match of the K.O.Y.L.I. Cup, played on the Hongkong Polo Club's grounds yesterday afternoon. The teams were: Royal Artillery, (Blue)—Lieut. J. A. L. Schreiber, Lieut. A. L. Birt, Lieut. G. R. Dunbar, and Major J. B. Barry, Reserve, Lieut. H.R.R. Prior.

South Wales Borderers, (Green)—Lieut. J. W. Hope, Lieut. R. S. Creswell, Lieut.-Col. G. T. Raikes, Capt. P. L. Villar, Reserve, Capt. C. F. Blackden.

Referees, Capt. Cooper and Mr. Pollock.

From the throw-in to the final bell, exciting polo was witnessed. The Borderers took the offensive early, and ran the ball into the artillery territory. For a second or two it lay untouched and then came streaking out. Capt. Villar gathered it in front of him, drove it into the open, and five minutes after the start gave the Borderers their first goal.

The R. A. took the offensive, immediately on resumption, and drove the ball for the opposing goal. It lingered for a few seconds near the side line, until a beautiful shot sent it racing for the danger line. There was a sigh of relief from the Borderers' supporters as it missed the goal by inches.

Following an exciting battle for the ball in midfield, the Borderers took command, and Lieut. Hope piloted the ball down the field. His final drive caused it to strike the post and fly off at a tangent—through the opening.

At the end of the first chukker, the score was, S.W.B. 2, R.A., 0.

Second Chukker.

Determined to increase their lead, the Borderers dived into the fray from the opening of the second chukker. The Artillery had a bad break a few minutes later, when with nothing but the goal in front of them, two of their players missed easy shots. They compensated for this in the next rally, however, getting in several fine drives. The R. A. were now pressing hard, but the infantrymen proved as good in defence as in attack. Time and again difficult situations were retrieved by sparkling backhand shots and good riding. Suddenly an opening appeared, and the Artillery pressed forward, but out of the crowd came Lieut. Hope. Riding vigorously he lashed out and hit the ball spinning towards the goal. He outrode his opponents in the chase and finally banged a goal safely home, scoring the third point for his side.

The scores now were, S.W.B. 3, R.A., 0.

The Borderers, despite their lead, did not let up for a moment but pressed forward again after the in-lerval. Hope, playing excellent polo, scored again, and gave his team a clear lead of four.

Artillery Rally.

The artillerymen now came into the picture. Bad luck, however, dogged them, and another long shot just missed. Five minutes after the opening of the third chukker, they came with a rush and Lieut. Schreiber was able to do the necessary. He did all that was required of him, bringing off a perfect angle shot.

The R. A. were now on their mettle, and made another determined onslaught on their opponents' goal. Another splendid run down and shot and from Lieut. Schreiber raised the score to S.W.B. 4, R.A. 2.

The game hung on the fourth chukker, and the R. A. were all out for victory. They pressed from the start, but a good shot went astray. In the next minute the Borderers set the issue beyond all doubt when Lieut. Hope scored his fourth successive goal.

The final scores were—S.W.B. 5, R. A. 2.

Cup Presented.

The handsome Cup and the four miniatures were presented to the winners after the game by Mrs. W. T. Southern, wife of His Excellency the Officer Administering the Government.

Mrs. Southern was introduced by H. E. Major-General Sandilands, the G.O.C., who thanked the officers of the Royal Artillery and the 24th Regiment for the enjoyable afternoon's sport and entertainment.

"We have seen excellent polo this afternoon," he said. "It is as good as any I have seen in the Colony."

Complimenting the band of the South Wales Borderers for the musical programme, Major-General Sandilands congratulated the winners and offered his sympathy to the losers.

After Mrs. Southern had presented the prizes, the G.O.C. called for three cheers for her. These were rousingly given. "Thank you very much," said Mrs. Southern. "It has been a delightful afternoon."

H. E. Mr. Southern was also present during the afternoon.

CROWBAR RAID ON A CHURCH

THE KENSITTES AT ST. HILARY

VICAR PRISONER

London, Aug. 10. Amazing scenes were witnessed at St. Hilary Church, Marazion, Cornwall, yesterday afternoon, during which Crowbars, hammers, and chisels were used to remove church ornaments: The Vicar was locked in the church: The vergers were overpowered: and The church bell was rung to summon assistance.

The scenes followed the arrival of representatives of the Protestant Truth Society, led by Mr. J. A. Kensitt, and during the raid ornaments which lately formed the subject of an inquiry by the Chancellor of the Diocese were either badly damaged or removed.

The beautiful reredos at the back of the altar, designed by Ernest Proctor, A.R.A., was destroyed and the canopy torn down. Two tabernacles were removed, the Venetian bracket supporting the image of St. Joseph was dug out of the wall, and the images of St. Anne and Our Lady removed. The 16th Century font was smashed, and the plinth at the foot of the memorial to Canon Rogers, a former Vicar of Penzance, was broken.

Later, the articles removed from the church were loaded on motor lorries, the police being present while this was done.

The raiders had arrived at Marazion in two private motor-cars and two motor coaches, their forces having first been concentrated at Plymouth.

The Vicar is the Rev. N. Bernard Walke, who, each Christmas, broadcasts a Nativity play.

The Raid

Mr. H. R. Hopes, the people's church-warden, stated that he was in the church when two men and two women applied for admission. The church was locked, but he let them in because one of the men was in clerical attire.

They were admiring the church. Mr. Hopes said, when there was a knock at the door. He at once opened the door, whereupon a crowd of people rushed in and began smashing up articles with crowbars, chisels, and hammers.

Mr. Norman Peters, the bell-ringer, stated that he rang the church bell for assistance, but was overpowered, the rope being taken from him.

After the raid, Mr. Kensitt stated they had hoped against hope that Mr. Walke would remove the articles himself, as directed by the Chancellor, but he refused to do so. Accordingly, five of his supporters entered the church as visitors and then admitted another party before the vergers could prevent them.

The Vicar, he added, entered soon afterwards, and they would not allow him to get out because they had heard of threats that had been made.

They then set about removing articles, Mr. Kensitt continued, but allowed Mr. Walke to remove the Reserved Sacrament.

After the articles had been removed, Kensitts held a service outside the church. Indignation was expressed by the parishioners, one of whom threw a piece of turf at Mr. Kensitt.

Mr. Walke stated: "It was done wilfully and wantonly. They have taken two tabernacles. They had a faculty for removing only one of the tabernacles, but the one in Jesus Chapel has also been removed. They had no permission legally to do that."

"The Venetian bracket supporting the substitute of the image of St. Joseph has been taken and dug out of the wall, but they had no power to do that either. There were also substitutes of the images of St. Anne and Our Lady, but these have not been blessed, and therefore, there is no desecration."

"They tried to bargain with me to get the key of the Monstrance in which I keep the Holy Wafers."

"The old Fifteenth Century font which stood by the church door has also been broken and smashed into three pieces, and they have also taken away the old Cross. The plinth at the foot of the memorial to Canon Rogers has also been broken up. The font was a wonderful piece of Fifteenth Century work, and the reredos was a very fine piece of art."

Miss A. M. King, who has taken a leading part in the controversy and was in the party which removed the articles from the church, stated:

"We have simply carried out the order of the law in this matter. We have taken away the articles which the Consistory Court ordered to be removed, and they are now deposited in my home. I shall keep them until I am advised by my legal advisers as to what I am to do."

Cause of Dispute

The Chancellor of the Diocese, Sir Philip Wilbraham, held a Consistory Court at Church House, Westminster, last February, to hear an application by certain parishioners for the removal of 15 articles, which included the tabernacles, five altars, and crucifixes.

The Chancellor, giving his decision, said that it was clear that many of the services at St. Hilary went far beyond what was permissible in the Church of England.

He thought it clear that the faculty for removal must include a tabernacle with a lighted lamp hanging over it; an image of the Virgin and Child in the Lady Chapel; a green crucifix above the tabernacle; the Stations of the Cross; the Sanctus Bell; and the Monstrance, if it were kept in the church.

He also directed that images of St. Joseph and St. Anne, together with votive candles, should be removed. He made no order in regard to five stone altars, as their removal would be a work of destruction, which would leave the church in a state of desolation.

Sir Philip Wilbraham yesterday stated that he had issued to the petitioners a faculty entitling them to remove the ornaments.

If they acted strictly in accordance with the faculty," he said, "they were perfectly within their rights. I was afraid, however, there would be trouble in the parish."

LYTTON REPORT FORECASTS

TOKYO FLOODED WITH REPORTS

Tokyo, Sept. 9. Tokyo is flooded with reports, from unofficial, but reportedly reliable sources, of several decisions and suggestions embodied in the Lytton report.

According to one, the Commission recognises that it is impossible for Manchuria to return to its former status, and suggests the country be demilitarised, and, assisted by Japanese advisors, continue to be retained by China under nominal sovereignty.

Another report received in official quarters comes from a source in Peking connected with the Commission and says that "Japan has won most of the points, and consequently ought to be satisfied with the Lytton report."

According to this informant, the report

(1) Gives both the Chinese and the Japanese contentions but makes no judgment on them;

(2) States that individual Japanese held to establish the Manchukuo regime, unassisted by the Japanese Government, although it subsequently extended its support, seeing that the new State was friendly;

(3) States that the Japanese military authorities have exceeded the necessities of self-defence, although the officers and men have acted in the belief that their conduct was within limits of self-defence;

(4) Does not mention a word about aggression, and

(5) Declares that the Chinese volunteers have been supported by Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang.—Reuter.

Recognition date
Shanghai, Sept. 9.

According to semi-official Japanese reports, Japan will formally recognise the Manchukuo Government on September 13.

As this is expected to lead to a very strained situation at Shanghai, the Japanese authorities are taking precautionary measures to meet all emergencies.—Reuter.

BOILER BLOWS UP.

FOUR INJURED IN SHAI EXPLOSION

Four people were injured in a spectacular boiler explosion at a dye works which occurred on Sunday night two blocks behind the Carlton Theatre at Shanghai, while the concern's chimney, hurled into the air, came down in two pieces a hundred yards apart, one of them causing the street lighting for the neighbourhood to be extinguished for some time.

The explosion occurred shortly before 10 p.m., at the Mei Lee Dye Works, 110-117 Kuling Road, where a boiler, of not very large capacity, suddenly burst. The whole side of the building was blown out, while steam pipes and walls, as well as tubs of dye-stuffs, became a mass of wreckage.

Three engines from Sinza Fire station were summoned to the scene, their crews finding, on arrival, four of the works' employees lying half buried in the debris. Fears were entertained that they had possibly been electrocuted, but they were being treated at the Lester Hospital within a few minutes, and their injuries were found not to be serious.

The force of the explosion blew the chimney off its moorings, in two main pieces, one of which landed in Park Road over 100 feet to the west, and another in Kuling Road, 100 feet to the north. The latter landed first on electric street lighting wires, causing them to short circuit, a fuse on the circuit a short distance away consequently tripping and the whole neighbourhood being deprived of its street lights.

AUSTRALIAN TRADE.

NEW AGENCY COMMENCES IN HONGKONG

The formation in Hongkong of the Australian Traders Agency, with headquarters at 2, Connaught Road, points to the fact that concrete steps are at last being taken by Australian exporters to distribute their products in the Far East on a systematic basis.

It is understood that the new distributing organisation, which is headed by Mr. L. A. Bunbury, of Melbourne, is being sponsored for three years by a well-known and reputable local firm, who are placing their commodities and general staff at the disposal of the agency.

Mr. Bunbury has been prominently associated with Australian trade to the Far East for many years, and has worked hard to promote better trade relations with Hongkong. Although at present Australian exporters have the advantage of a favourable exchange position, operations have been somewhat restricted in the past by the high costs of handling products, and profits have been eaten up to a great extent by the large percentages demanded by local importers.

It is understood that the objects of the new agency are solely and purely the distribution in South and North China of Australian products. Individual attention will be given to the selling of all Australian lines on a competitive basis.

YOUTH SENTENCED.

CONVICTED OF HARBOURING YOUNG GIRL

The case in which a Chinese youth, Lai Po-hing, was charged with harbouring a girl of 16, was concluded at the Kowloon Magistrate's court yesterday afternoon, when defendant was sentenced to four months' hard labour.

Defendant was originally charged with harbouring and selling the girl in Canton, but later the second charge was dropped.

Mr. W. M. Thomson, of the S.C.A., prosecuted, while Mr. T. P. K. Kemble represented the defendant.

Three witnesses were called yesterday afternoon, these being the girl's mother, a shop-keeper and his assistant.
